Our public affairs team provides strategic consultation, helping your company create and execute strategies that will secure and support your public policy and business goals.

In today's changing business and regulatory marketplace, it's important that organizations have an effective road map that prepares them for current and potential challenges while maximizing new opportunities. KCOMM is dedicated to providing cost-effective and result-driven services to its clientele.

New Approach

Traditional politics and lobbying strategies are not as effective in today's world of emerging communication technologies. The political landscape has changed, which is why our "next generation" government affairs division has been retained by top corporations throughout America.

Our government, public relations and internet marketing practices are all blended together, giving our clients and elected officials additional resources for optimal communication and results, creating the leverage needed to be successful.

Whether it's on the local or federal level, we have a strong track record of helping our clients create relationships with the most powerful government entities. We represent and service clients in the areas of technology, energy, insurance, transportation, environmental agencies, military, land use development, and telecommunications.

Our Clients

Our experienced team has provided a multitude of services to Fortune 500 corporations, statewide organizations, law firms, congressional members, and state legislators including hundreds of government agencies/cities throughout the United States.
